FIVE CENTS

the Rocky Mountains is from 10,000 to 12,000 feet. This is the mean height of the immense continental sweep of the Cordillers de la Sierra Madre. It is probable that the average height in Colorado, which is the table-land of the continent, will approach very nearly to 12,000 feet.

im- The Great Beauty of Japanese Scenery,

My first sight of Japan was from the deck of the steamer Great Republic, as we sailed up the Bay of Yokobama. The asplace pect of the country at once charmed us, and this spell never for a moment lost its power, but rather increased in joy, and now remains a vision fair and beautiful in the mind forever.

The mountain-tops were somewhat bare, alignment of the mountain tops were somewhat bare alignment of the mountain tops were somewhat bare, alignment of the mountain tops were somewhat bare alignment of the mountain tops were somewhat bare alignment of the mountain tops were somewhat bare alignment of the mountain tops were the record of the firm way ent.

The mountain-tops were somewhat bare, but embosomed in the numerous cliffs were woods and temples; and farther down, peaks and crags of every variety, all covered with luxuriant vegetation. Far in the distance, Fusiyama appeared—a strange sight—a mighty cone, fourteen thousand feet high, with its apex above the clouds, covered with snow down to a clear, well-defined line, where there was a dark belt, and then the body of the mountain disappeared; so that the whole thing looked like a white triangle resting in the firmament, or like some great white in the firmament, or like some great white triangular guardian deity, silently, solemn-ly, but conspicuously watching over the

Our sail through the inland sea was positively absorbing; headland after head-land, islands of all sizes and of every description of contour, situated in all direc-tions, and then the perpetual recurrence of village after village, Daimios' residences, and all the diversity of hill and dale, high cultivation, and the richness of nature, absolutely chained us to the deck. I have never seen any scenery to match it. The Straits of Anjer, between Java and Sumatra, the Cilolo passage, the Straits of Singapore, and many others I have sailed through are not for a moment to be compared to it. The harbor of Nagasaki may be said to crown the whole. The entrance on a fine evening is like fairy-land. I have seen no port in the East-equal to it for beauty.—Rev. Dr. Williamson.

An Important Occasion.

THE Evangelical Alliance will hold its next session (1873) in New York. It was to have been held there in 1870, but the Franco-Prussian war made its postpone-

Dr. Schaff has been making arrangements with representative Protestant men that the session will bring together a greater array of European religious notabilities than has ever been seen in our country, including not a few who are dear to American theologians and scholars.

While it will thus afford special interest While it will thus afford special interest to our own countrymen, it will probably be still more interesting to the foreign delegates themselves. They will witness the peculiar development of religious and political life going on here, so unlike anything in most of Europe, and so problematic to European thinkers, especially religious thinkers. They will find that "the voluntary principle" keeps up an energetic, popular, religious spirit here, which is unknown within the European State churches. They will learn that the voluntary liberality of the people gives better sustentation ity of the people gives better sustentation to the clergy than their own national establishments afford, and that the foreign propagation of the common faith, by missions, is more scalously maintained by our people than by any other—England, perhaps, alone excepted:

The rapidity of intercommunication throughout the land will afford these guests the means of seeing, somewhat, the magnitude of the great territorial heritage which God has given us, and we hope that the New York committees will make thorough preparations for their chesp, or gratuitons, communications the seeming. even across the continent to the Pacific. It will be an impressive fact for these European scholars and Christians to discover here a land servical millions of square miles larger than all Europe, under one government, one flag, with one language, and pre-eminently Protestant in its religion. They will return to their homes with deep-cned interest for us, and better hopes for religion and liberty throughout the world.—Erchange.

False Eyes.

A Frances paper gives a detailed account of the manufacture of false eyes in Paris, from which the curious fact appears the the average sale per week of eyes intended for the human head amounts to 400. One for the human head amounts to 400. One of the leading dealers in this article carries on the business in a salson of great magnificence. His servant has but one eye, and the effect of any of the eyes wanted by castomers is conveniently tried in this servant's head, so that the customer can judge very readily as to the appearance it will produce in his own head. The charge is about $10 per eye. For the poor, there are second-hand visual organs which have been worn for a time, and exchanged for new ones; they are sold at reduced prices, and quantities are sent off to India and the Sandwich Islands.

Climate of San Francisco.

Ir is hot enough an I changeable enough in the interior, but San Francisco seems to have a climate exclusively its own. What would not the poor swelfered and blistered New Yorkers have given in August for a few days of such weather as they had here all the time, at a temperature of sixty-five to sixty-eight? Light overcoats are in almost daily demand. Furn are worn almost the year round by some ladies, and not much more in February than in August. Umbrellas are not needed from April to October. The sun may rise cloudy and cold, and in New York or Bestern every one would predict min, but not so here. And when the rains some, botteen October and April, it is not with violence—but only frequent abovers.
